Cyber Security is headline news these days, from high profile data breaches to state sponsored cyber threats, but what does it mean to your business?

To manage your cyber risk, you must understand it. It's a simple fact that not all breaches are the work of cybercriminals, some of the most brand damaging and newsworthy cyber incidents are down to basic human error.

Jersey Telecom working with our cyber security partner ITC Secure, have designed a free Cybersecurity Masterclass for our customers. With the aim to provide you with the most up to date information, answer some of your burning cyber questions, debunk the myths and provide expert advice on all your security needs.

As the Island's leading provider of enterprise services, helping you protect your business is important to us.

The event, on Thursday 27th June will be opened by Sir Andrew Ridgway former Lieutenant-Governor of Jersey and Chief of Defence Intelligence and will include a keynote speaker Malcolm Taylor who had a distinguished career with the UK intelligence services, leading counter terrorism cyber security teams.

We will also present a short, interactive masterclass to help you plan for that worst case cyber security incident.

Topics will include;

- Current and future cyber-risks, geopolitical threats and how to manage risk
- Cyber as a boardroom agenda in a world of digital transformation
- A short security breach masterclass to discuss reporting a breach, legal obligations and stakeholder engagement
- Plus much more.

Further information on the event will follow, however, spaces are limited so to secure your place please RSVP as soon as possible. Our team will send a personal reminder closer to the day.

Please RSVP to marketing@itcsecure.com or by clicking the 'RSVP' button below.
